Eastern Caribbean Forecast: A line of moisture will see some showers moving across the Windward Islands to Trinidad mainly this afternoon and into the night. The possibility also exists for some showers becoming moderate at times. Further north, a weak low level trough will traverse the north Eastern Caribbean and is expected to generate at least a moderate chance of showers for the Leeward Islands today and more so for the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico tonight. However, low moisture levels will continue to restrict any significant shower activity. Notwithstanding, a high pressure system remains the dominant weather feature, producing moderate to fresh breeze across the area.
